PREFACE.

I WISH to acknowledge my obligations to many persons who have assisted me in the preparation of the present volume: to Mr Aldis Wright for numerous suggestions and continual help; at the British Museum to Mr Sidney Colvin (nos. 2191–2), Mr A. W. Pollard and the late Mr Robert Proctor who assisted me whenever I appealed to them, and Mr C. Dodgson who has supplied me with a note on the last page of the book; to Mr Madan (nos. 5332, 5685); Dr Norman Moore upon the Irish type (nos. 6427–9); Mr E. Gordon Duff upon Remunde (p. 1357) and Regnault (p. 1377) and note upon no. 527; Mr F. Warre Cornish (no. 4022); Mr W. Cowan upon the Book of Common Order (and no. 6200); the Rev. W. H. Frere (no. 1437); Dr Barclay Smith (no. 1215); Mr W. W. Greg (nos. 3728 and 7317); Mr Gillow (no. 6607); Mr G. J. Gray for corrections in Vol. II and help offered in Vol. III: in the University Library to Mr H. G. Aldis for placing at my disposal all his knowledge of the later Scottish printing; Mr E. J. Worman for references to John Growte, Schilders, and Hercules Franciscus; and to many other members of the staff. Professor Eugene Warburgh, Professor of Law in Harvard University, drew my attention to blunders on nos. 350 and 713. Mr F. Vander Haeghen, Librarian in Chief of the University of Ghent, assisted me with a note upon Jodocus Dooms (no. 6657); Mr S. G. de Vries, Librarian of the University of Ghent, has given me courteous and constant help, not only on the present occasion, but through what is now a considerable number of years; Signore Chilovi, head of the Biblioteca Nazionale

112253

Centrale of Florence, supplied me with information in connexion with Bartolomeo Sermatelli (p. 1442); Herr Fr. Voget, Librarian of the Grosse Kirche in Emden, helped me on p. 1444; my friend Heer E. W. Moes of the Rijks Museum, Amsterdam, sent me a valuable note printed on p. 1433.

With all this help, it should have been possible to have made an effective inroad into the unknown country of our English literature produced abroad. But there is much which it has been impossible to state with certainty. Many ascriptions rank rather as probabilities: the Middelburg, the later Paris, and the St Omer entries are at present little more than suggestions (p. 1468).

In England too, there is a good deal to be cleared up. Where are the books issued by the Company of Parish Clerks, who, as we know from the Stationers' Registers, had a press in their hall (Arber iii. 704)?

Some recent benefactions must be recorded. From Oxford, the President and Fellows of Magdalen College have sent us nos. 7064–5. In Cambridge, a large number of Proclamations have been received from the University Registry. The Master and Fellows of Trinity College have presented a rare fragment from the Southwark press (no. 7676); the Master and Fellows of Gonville and Caius College a broadside relating to Norwich and Beccles (no. 7364); the President and Fellows of Queens' College a fragment of an all but unique New Testament (no. 7703).

C. E. S.

Title in facsimile (without verso) with Latin and English legends. Centre in type of the Bible. The second leaf, and last leaf blank are wanting. Half of the map only remains.

The place of the printing of this book is not fully established. The prefatory leaves are obviously from a source which is not that of the book itself; and it may be noted that the initial C on the verso of the fourth leaf (sig. ✠iiij b) is of a type used by Jean Petit at Paris in his edition of Despauterius Prima pars Grammatice, 4° on F. lxxx [M*.10.44[1] (D)]. It may be of use to point out that the initial T at III John i. is of the design used at Cologne in 1521 by E. Cervicornus and H. Fuchs in Quintiliani Institutiones, F° at F. XII b [W.1.25.]

This is, I believe, by the printer of the L. Vaux in BM. It is certainly by the printer of the edition of 1583 in Caius College Library, Cambridge.

This book is based upon the Enchiridion precationum piarum of Simon Verepæus. It is to be noted that the woodcut of three garlands 'Prayer is good with fasting and almes' is copied from a cut used in the work of Verepæus. There are two editions of this in the library, Antwerp 1571, 16° [A*.7.20(G)], and 1575, 16° [1.51.47]. Cf. an edition printed at Dilingen in 1580 of which there is a copy in Selwyn College Library in Cambridge. The cut also appears at Lyons with this legend in French used by B. Rigaud (1555–1588), cf. Baudrier Bibliographie lyonnaise III. 464 (no. 52).

The omission occurs in Matthew's Bible of 1537 (no. 6081), so that this edition was probably reprinted from the other. (Information kindly supplied by Mr W. Aldis Wright.)

P. 188. No. 964. Mr Aldis Wright informs me that there were two engraved titles to this edition, and that the one in this copy was actually supplied with the first edition, as well as used for the second. He has also shown me within the last few days that there are two plates used in the first edition, one of which is found in two states. In plate A (this copy), the letters 'Honi soit' &c. are black, and the lion's paw rests on the white border of the lower inscription. The background behind the sceptre is plain. In the second state of this, the background is stippled. In plate B, the letters are white, and the lion's paw rests on the dotted background of the plate. Note that the Virgil Solis cuts in this are to be found in the German Bible printed at Frankfort in 1560, F°. In some of these the figure of God the Father is replaced by the Adonai. Note the engraver S H at Gen. i. 1. S H and burin at Gen. ii, iii, iv, xxviii, xxxix, Exodus xxvi, xxix, IV Kings xvii, Ezek. xxxvii, Daniel i. 'S. F.' at Matt. i. 1 (as in the Frankfort Bible). Mark '+11' at Luke i (as in the Frankfort Bible) and Acts i. 13+[burin], at John i (as in the Frankfort Bible). The engraver 'Ꝑ' [qu. 'H.'?] at III Kings x, 'Ꝑ' at IV Kings vii, 'Ꝑ' at II Esdras iv, Esther v, vi, Daniel ii, Apocrypha, ꝼ at Rom. i (not on the Frankfort plate), repeated at Titus i. The engraver Cornelius at Exodus xxvii, Ꝕ at III Kings i, Daniel vii, Hosea i, Nahum i, Haggai i, Revelation i, vii, viii. The V. Solis cut to I Kings xxi contains the date '1559'. I Thess. iv. 1 reads 'Furtherfore' with a corrected label 'urthermore.'
